The European Semiconductor Manufacturing Company (ESMC) GmbH is the joint venture of TSMC, Bosch, Infineon, and NXP. For the first time, the global technology leader TSMC is building a semiconductor fab in the heart of Europe, offering new manufacturing technologies for next-generation semiconductor products. ESMC will be the first and so far the only pure foundry in Europe, enabling sustainable mass production with FinFET technology. The company will specialize as a contract manufacturer for customers in growing industries such as automotive, industrial, IoT, and telecommunications markets. ESMC stands for the joint commitment to strengthening the European semiconductor ecosystem and will grow to over 2,000 team members in the coming years.
